Workmen were engaged in putting the weather vane on the cupola of the court house Saturday, also in finishing up the interior of the same.

ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The congregation of St. John's Episcopal church is increasing so rapidly that their church edifice became altogether inadequate for their accommodation. Rev. Mr. Edson informed an Eagle reporter yesterday that the congregation numbered nearly 275, or that there were that number of Episcopalians in the city connected with the parish, or have expressed their intention of worshipping in his congregation.

For some time the congregation has been considering the proposition of building a fine stone edifice, but at length determined to enlarge and remodel the present church, and defer building a new one until they were able to choose the most favorable location.

Accordingly they proceeded to enlarge, remodel and beautify the old church and the work was finished yesterday. The result is quite a commodious and really handsome structure, complete in all its appointments.

Mr. Edson was seen inside among the workmen, in his shirt sleeves, working like a beaver. He explained to the reporter the changes that had been made. He felt quite proud of the result, and well he might, especially as he is the designer and the work was done under his direction. A glance at the interior reveals a very beautiful, well appointed church, all newly painted, trimmed and carpeted.

The varied colors of paintings, carpets and trimmings blending in perfect harmony and combining to produce a most pleasing effect.

The back end has been torn out of the church, and a new addition 213x8 has been built to the rear end, and a new chancel erected double the size of the old.

The new addition forms a transept to the old structure, which is the nave. The outline of the whole is cruciform, or cross shaped. A cellar has been dug under the church for a furnace and the whole church will be heated by steam. A chimney two feet wide with two ventilators is ranged so as to facilitate the escape of gas from the church connects with the furnace.

Mr. Edson gave the reporter a description on ventilation which shows his familiarity with that subject. New chandeliers have been put in and the house will be lighted with gas.

The general service arranged in accordance with ecclesiastical custom. The entire edifice is newly painted. The body of the exterior is slate color with imitation red sandstone trimmings, which renders a very fine effect in conjunction with the stained glass windows. The interior has been painted in pearl grey, with the roof of sky blue. The inside of roof is of open frame work ciled with four-inch matched pine. The heavy rafters with their chamfers are of a brilliant red. The pews and wainscoting are in the black and oil with black walnut trimmings. The chancel is a beauty. Its furniture is of chestnut trimmed with walnut and oil finished. The ladies of the Women's Guild have laid the chancel floor with an elegant inlaid carpet of black and black figure. At the back of the altar is a rich, dark red damask hanging with the Greek letters alpha and omega in large size embroidered thereon, which forms a background for the fine gold altar cross. The altars are carpeted. The entire work displays good taste and the effect as one enters the door is very fine.

They appear strange to some, but he told that the first church building of any denomination in this city was a little Episcopal church. Our Episcopal friends are to be congratulated on the remodeling of their church. The present seating capacity is 275 and services will be held in the remodeled edifice for the first time today, beginning at 11 a. m.

AN OLD-FASHIONED BUSINESS DAY.
In strong contrast to Friday, yesterday was a regular old-fashioned business day—one of the Wichita sort.

Hundreds of farmers teams were in laden with all manner of farm produce and going home they were loaded with dry goods, groceries, furniture and other varieties of goods our merchants have to sell. The grain buyers were kept busy. It was a good market day and the volume of trade was very large.

The streets were crowded with people all intent on business and the sidewalks presented an animated appearance. There were bells ringing here and sundries calling of their wares there and fairs and lightning rods were there and men with soap for taking out grease spots, in other places. There was a general rattle and roar of business and every one looked happy.

At Harry Hill's auction there were big sales and stock went off lively. There were a large number of strangers in the city also. There were excursionists from Ohio and land seekers from the frozen regions of the north. There were presidents of railroads and capitalists looking after railroad interests. Merchants, mechanics and manufacturers from all over looking for good locations in the country. A nice town was provided him, two mares and an open topped buggy.

One of the animals was a light colored bay horse with black face, the other black and rather thin. He rode off soon after and not until yesterday were the suspicions of the proprietors aroused by parties coming into the city, saying that they had met the team going in a northwestern direction, yesterday morning, which at once caused the owners of the team to commence telegraphing to head the team off and catch the thief.

Trail City is the name of a new town on the Colorado border, 106 feet from the Kansas line, which is flying high just now. It is called the cowboy's paradise; has one hundred saloons and Lord knows how many gambling joints. It is on the Texas trail and the Santa Fe is going to build big stock yards there. It is just clear of prohibition limits and everything goes.

ANOTHER BOLD HORSE THIEF.
A thief runs off with Two Horses and a Carriage in daylight.

Bush & Rogers keep a lively stable on Douglas avenue, and on Friday, a little after noon a young man about 24 years old, came in and requested that a team be provided him to visit relatives a short distance in the country. A nice team was provided him, two mares and an open topped buggy.

ROBINSON'S SILK SALE.

The Ladies Going Wild Over the Big Bargains.

A reporter was attracted into Robinson's store, 21 Main street, yesterday by seeing a large crowd of ladies inside looking over great stacks of new silks. On entering, the immense piles of the rich and beautiful fabric, and asked Mr. Robinson if he was going exclusively into the silk trade. Mr. Robinson said the house had sent the goods to them to be sold and they will sell them. The silks examined were of fine texture and exceedingly heavy, and of various hues; all staple goods. The time was when ladies from the states used to go over to Canada to buy silks but there is no need of that now. The fine quality of the goods is such that it is worth anyone posted in the quality and price of such goods. An examination is equivalent to a sale. Go and see them.

NATIONAL PEOPLE'S PARTY.
The meeting of this organization at the court house Saturday afternoon drew out quite a crowd of Greenbackers and friends of labor reform.

Mr. R. Syster, the chairman, called the meeting to order, and after the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting the committee on resolutions asked for more time to finish their work, as they had been unable to get together and complete a full set of resolutions.

On motion their request was granted and another meeting appointed for the 16th of October.

On motion of Mr. Syster the secretary was ordered to communicate with the leading Greenbackers in the different townships relating to the time and place of the next meeting and the importance of having a large attendance.

On motion the chairman was requested to appoint a suitable executive committee in this county.

The meeting then adjourned until Saturday, October 12th at 2 p. m.

R. Syster, Chairman.
E. H. Lottel, Secretary.

HE HAD TO DISOBEY.
A company of old soldiers were together yesterday and were recounting old army scenes and camp experiences and were quite mellow in social glasses. One of them was a few hundred dollars which he was about to pay to the Arkansas Lumber company.

While this sociability was going on a stranger rung himself in the crowd and made himself exceedingly familiar with the man who showed up so much money. After a time the man with the money laid down hanging with the Green letters alpha and omega in large size embroidered thereon, which forms a background for the fine gold altar cross. The altars are carpeted. The entire work displays good taste and the effect as one enters the door is very fine.

BASE BALL.

Two young gentlemen came into the Eagle office last night and called for the base ball editor.

That functionary was found, when the visitors explained that there was a big game played at Greenwich yesterday between the professional nine of Benton and Greenwich, the score standing 37 to 27, nine innings, in favor of the Bentons. They requested the base ball editor to write it up big and say that it was a professional game. The devil happened in at the time and said that the score was a dead giveaway on the professional business, but the players explained that they began at noon and played until 7 p. m., and the base ball editor said, "That settles it."

MORE LIGHT.
One thing which detracts from the city aspect of Wichita is her miserably lighted streets. It is remarked by strangers that they never saw a city of its size, and with such pretensions, so miserably lighted, or rather darkened. Douglas V. Donnelly is reported to be hard at work on a treatise on light and heat, in which, it is said, he will set the full charge of the blame at Councilman Healy, the chairman of the committee on lights and lamps and gas and all that pertaining thereto. Mr. Donnelly's literary attainments and scientific researches amply qualify him to edit such a volume, and there is no doubt but that it will be very ably written up, and will stir up the lighter rather, dark committee.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.
The latest victim in the whisky line is Joseph Anthony, who was arrested on the affidavit of C. F. Carr, charged with the offense of turning an honest penny with a glass of beer. Carr went gambling in a shanty next to the joint kept by Anthony at or near the Farmers and Drivers house and because he couldn't hold four aces and scoop in the pin, he applied to the law and had the dispenser of the ardent scooped. The case was continued a convenient season and when next Anthony is heard from he will either be an emigrant or a free boarder at John Fisher's.

A GOOD HORSE GONE WRONG.
It is not often that a good horse goes wrong, instances of absconding being very rare indeed, but when they do go it is most generally that a horse thief is on the back of it. Ed. Daisy put a valuable sorrel horse, one of a team, in a pasture west of town about two months ago. When he went to look for his horse he found it gone, and of him can now be found. How long he has been on the road, or in what direction he went, there is no means of knowing. But one thing is absolutely certain, the horse is gone, and Ed. fears from him and his heirs forever.

POLICE COURT.
J. W. Jenkins and James Brown were charged by a policeman with being drunk and the worst of it all he proved to them they were drunk, so drunk that they didn't know a police officer from a lamp-post, or the police judge from an alderman. Judge Glenn took all these circumstances in consideration and assessed a fine of $3 against each and costs.

Mr. G. Whittier, recently purchased a 14-horse mule, a handsome stallion, a little slim in flesh, but he thought soon to remedy that defect by pouring lots of grain into him, but in this he failed. The horse would eat nothing but what was green, so he remained as thin as ever. At length he put a pair of green spectacles on the noble brute and now he eats corn with avidity. Whittier is a horse man.

Rev. J. F. Nossly starts to-morrow for a New Year's celebration of the family's settlement in Hancock county, West Virginia, commencing September 17th. The celebration will be held in the old original home of Rev. Nossly's grandfather, Mr. Nossly himself being the only living grandson of the name.

Ed Pyle and J. W. Flood, were in town yesterday on route home from Garden City. They report that town on a big boom. Twenty thousand dollars worth of lots were sold there last Thursday. They say the prospect for a good town is first rate.
